Bar on Access- Request form for PGRs

"The University has an expectation that a Postgraduate Research thesis is a document available for public consultation. As such, unless a legitimate reason for restricting access to the thesis exists, all PhD, Masters by Research, Professional Doctorates and MPhil theses will be made publicly available on the internet via the Bangor University Library Catalogue.

*A candidate can publish any research work before it is submitted for examination. Published work can be included in the thesis. In some cases, publication may not be permitted, for example, where constraints have been imposed by a sponsor or by the University. If a thesis contains confidential or sensitive data it may not be appropriate to make the full text freely available online. Similarly if there is the intention to publish the whole, or extracts from the thesis, then there may need to be a restriction to access to the electronic version. If this is the case, an embargo/bar on access may be requested. **

A bar on access to the thesis and/or accompanying data for a specified period of up to five years can be permitted. The candidate's Supervisor must submit a request for a bar on access. Requests must be submitted to the Doctoral School, and requests for a period of over 6 months will be considered by the Chair of the Senate Regulations and Special Cases Committee (or nominee)."

- Regulations for Postgraduate Research programmes

*Please note: only in exceptional cases may a thesis be restricted, such as on commercial grounds, pending patent application, confidentiality required by the funder, or restriction imposed specifically by a publisher (eg. because all or part of the thesis is being published as a book contract).
