MINDFULNESS-BASED INTERVENTIONS: TEACHING ASSESSMENT CRITERIA (MBI:TAC)

Why did we develop the
MBI:TAC?

We needed clear criteria to assess our master's students

The field needed benchmark standards for graduation

Research contexts needed a check on quality

Range of uses of the MBITAC

1. Reflective tool for personal development
2. Giving/receiving supervision
3. Developing trainer skills
4. Assessment: for research trials, training programmes etc

- Testing the criteria out in practice settings
- Pilot research

Adherence

Competence

The Challenge:
MBP teaching place strong emphasis on the implicit curriculum...embodied practice

‘Doing’ competence

- Striving towards an ideal – agenda driven
- Performing a role
- Identification and attachment to ‘MY’ competence
- Instrumental orientation

Competency framework for
MB teaching
– how can it include the subtleties?

Inhabiting contradiction and paradox.....

- Knowing and not knowing
- Giving it everything and allowing it to be no effort
- Having an agenda and no agenda
- Letting the outcome take care of itself – and being fully engaged in the process

Being human (incompetent?)

- Being in touch with vulnerability
- Allowing the unsatisfactory
- Being good enough
- Coming home to our humanity

Building competence in MBP teaching...

- Need the right conditions
  - Lifelong endeavour
  - Subtle shifts occur throughout development
  - Key to this is the developing role of intuition
- (Dreyfus & Dreyfus 1986)

'The heart has its reasons that reason does not know'

(from Pascal's Pensées)

Competence Stages

Incompetent

Non-adherence to model; safety of participants compromised

Beginner

Follows learned rules

Advanced Beginner

Follows rules in a more sophisticated way; teaching is deliberative

Competent

Movement away from rules towards embodied engagement in the moment

Proficient

Intuitive ability to use learned patterns without decomposing them into component features – increased responsiveness/flexibility

Advanced

Teaching skill is part of the person - fluidity/immersion in process

Dreyfus & Dreyfus (1986); Sharpless & Barber (2008)

TLC structure example using Domain 2: Relational skills

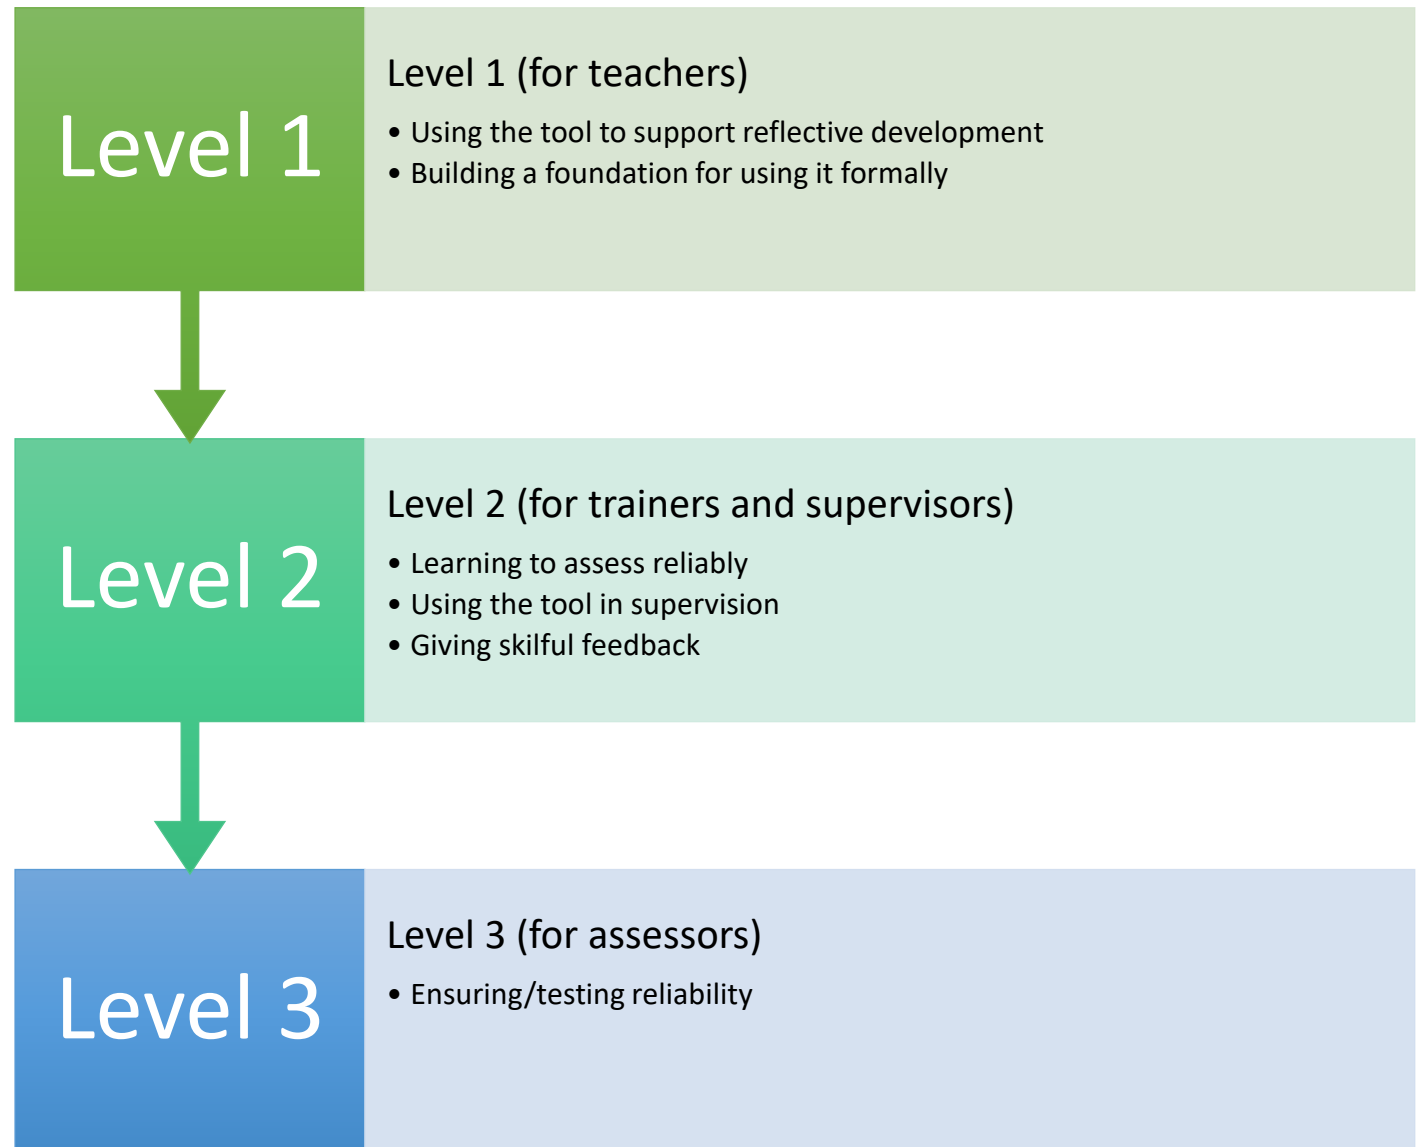

- TCL offers an overview of the key features and then a table for you to fill in*

| Key Features of Domain 2 |   | Yes, definitely | Yes, sometimes | Yes, but rarely | No, not yet | Not sure |
|--------------------------|---|-----------------|----------------|-----------------|-------------|----------|
| 1                        | Do I relate to participants in an authentic way?  |                 |                |                 |             |          |
| 2                        | Can I 'tune into' the participant's world, and convey an accurate and empathic understanding of this?                   |                 |                |                 |             |          |
| 3                        | Do I give participants my full attention when they speak, and relate in a warm and compassionate manner?                |                 |                |                 |             |          |
| 4                        | Am I able to be genuinely curious about participants experiences, and respect individual vulnerabilities and processes? |                 |                |                 |             |          |
| 5                        | Do I foster a sense of shared exploration among participants, of which I am a part?                                     |                 |                |                 |             |          |

Key principles to keep in mind

1. Keep the interests of the general public at the centre of our minds
2. Focus on individual teacher formation, and developing a supportive context for their practice
